"The young generation has not forgotten the face of a young man, a rich landowner, who had studied with the Germans as a laborer in a factory, in a technical plant. He was at a [radical] gathering... 'I advise you, gentlemen, to direct your attention to the the technical side and study technology.' 'Serve a machine?' 'No, gentlemen, join with us through all Russia; if only technical side goes well, then an upheaval (a revolution) will take place, incomparably more forceful and successful than all your appeals to the people."(Dostoevsky Sketchbooks for _A Raw Youth_, 1874)
